

Chapter 3

A Look Into History

Part 11 : Humankind

We begin with a meditation...

Feel the pyramid inside you. It centers your body with inner chambers similar to those of the pyramids in Giza we see depicted.

The top centered inside your head spinning down your spine connecting the base to your hips. This base is grounded to the Earth through our feet. Thoughts flowing through our bodies like gravity. Connecting us all at this moment.

Our memories we create in that moment, that's ourselves

Feel all this flowing through you like a river of spirit and thought to become a form. That's you.

~~How did we as humans~~

How did we as humans get so disconnected from this subject of thoughts and memories? I think among many reasons the topic is scary and time consuming. To approach this subject one must be honest when confronting deeper thoughts. On top of that the institutions make anything they don't control confusing, and not worth ones time. So instead of finding and creating joy, people are encouraged and taught the answer lies from something outside oneself.

This leads to people identifying as something.

The problem here is as soon as one identifies as a thing, they objectify themselves.
Objects become possession of something outside oneself, thus no longer possessed by themselves. Kind of a reach, but the point is we are light beings observing moment-to-moment creating thought.

We then use these thoughts to create language, which in its nature is vague and ambiguous, to define who we are. This in itself is a tautological paradox. We are taking a beautiful multi-dimensional being that represents God and breaking that down into a profile description on social media. One can draw oneself probably more honestly than they are able to describe themselves.

So where we are at right now is no trust for our past because we were primitive humans. We are left with modern culture to frame life around, and as far as we are led to believe this is the best humans have had it, so we have to learn to like it. All trust for any institutions or leaders is faded away so we get our sense of self and identity outwardly, really just through screens since not many people have good options as role models. People really think we live in that world but it's a fake world.

We live these lives inside our heads very much like a storybook written, or a sitcom on TV (Introduction, body, conclusion). The reality of the situation is what actually transpires on Earth is very different than what plays out inside ones head.

It is important to understand the implication here is one can implant false memories into people by repeating false narratives, and if one wants to make that memory stick than just take them to the Spirit World tapping into their soul, and providing that nourishing feeling everyone yearns for.

Since nobody teaches us how to control this realm, nefarious individuals use these strategies to hijack memories by triggering these benchmarks I spoke of. I know this is vague and ambiguous but I will make everything clear by the end, to the best that I can.

First, let's do inventory as humans; what do we know as fact? The enormous problem humans have is that the people claiming to have the answers lie and deceive; to the point now they don't care about being obvious.

Everyone you ask can't tell up from down, or who to trust. If you ask anyone on the streets who they trust; the answer will be nobody.

This distrust has seeped into every aspect of humanity. No one trusts his or her family, news reporters, politicians, teachers, lawyers, judges, government leaders, banks, financial institutions, schools, even doctors. To be perfectly honest none of these institutions should be trusted because they are all dishonest therefore deception ensues.

This is a huge problem because this is the infrastructure of what we term modern society, and we cannot trust a single aspect of it.

Essentially everything is fake and made up and the Cinderella Disney story on loop in people's heads is not real. Really we are so caught up in a deceptive lie that we desperately don't want to admit, like an addict. So as humans we have to keep propping up the machine to keep the Status quo going or reality gets weird fast. We just ignore blatant lies now, just like Covid which is sadly an outdated reference. They just keep making new lies to prop up the old ones.

We are light beings; so quit trying to live through a material world when you yourself have an entire universe within your body connected to countless other universes. This world we can trust, it is fair and honest.

This is Mother Nature our existence right here on Earth, what you are experiencing right now. The process of looking with your eyes, understanding the idea, coming up with new concepts and how they relate to you and the people you know; all while your body is metabolizing Earthly elements keeping your biological machine in harmony.

I refer to this concept as the reverse matrix. In the movie The Matrix they plugged you in and the reality simulation was created by external codes. You go into it and occupy inside there consciously. Our world works the opposite way. We create the material objects with thoughts, thus reality. We grab Onto the thought and say "where do I put my water?" Now we have cups to put water in. To get from just matter to a cup, point A to point B, it takes a conscious thought and matter alone cannot do that. What human history is really is this on a massive scale. As humans we are proactively using thoughts to create reality.

Something to consider is how much of the day do you control your thoughts?
This is your self. Unless one proactively is aware and honest with their own thoughts flowing through themselves, growing and controlling this very powerful and neglected aspect of humanity, one will let outside forces fill the voids within. Very much giving up on ones own sense of self. That person than becomes dependent on that exterior thing because that's what triggers that chemical inside the brain (drugs, food, booze, social media, human attention).

As I discussed earlier and the reason living like this is so unsatisfying is because it's fake and based on lies. Then to cover this up we begin to lie and deceive ourselves to the point that people don't even trust themselves anymore.

They are selling you good memories and nostalgia attempting to solve a problem they create. When no one has any sense of self, they give you a standard operating one and tell you how it makes you happy. The role of guiding and discovering oneself was that of the Shaman historically, and used to be the highest and most revered job amongst the citizens.

Today we are left with fake guides that don't even know themselves. These people have been hi-jacked themselves, as if they have brainwashed themselves to keep propping up this agenda they don't understand.

This is the existential crisis humans feel because frankly the lie is so big its citizens are left with nothing to fill in these absurd holes in the story we are all desperately trying to hold on to. This is why this entire fiasco is falling apart. We just keep the crazy ball rolling ... just because.

Everyone gave up because everyone is a liar and the most logical thing to do right now is grab on to whatever bit of reality you can for dear life. Humans have been through tough times and are fully capable of traversing this mess because we have back up, our ancestors, and they like me better than those running things right now.

Part 12: How I + All Began For Me

We begin with a meditation...

Right now you are standing on top of the world. Feel the thoughts flow through you spinning within your pyramidal sphere of influence; swirling and controlled. Feel as it spins around you.

Now picture the energy sphere of the Earth from space. What does this look like?

Just being Consciously aware of this is our purpose on Earth. By merely observing, we feed information into the conscious field, like which you just envisioned around the Earth. This is what we are tasked by Earth to do for her, and to perfect and learn how to enhance this ability is humanities purpose in life.

Right now half of Earth's humans are Unconscious. Just us thinking this makes Earth a unique Conscious living being that is spreading thought, information, and memories throughout the universe for other conscious entities to access.

Our ancestors understood this and permanently time stamped the Earth of this record with these massive undeniable structures they constructed all over the world. They left tattoos like in Christopher Nolan's movie Memento all over the Earth so humanity could never forget what we are capable of.

It was in 2010 when I came up with a plan for 2012, which was a topic I was very dedicated to. The Mayan calendar was coming to an end on December 21, 2012. So if this was going to be the end of civilization I wanted us to go out with a bang. I set out to prove humans do deserve a place amongst the stars. If not for the aliens that were going to come down to Earth at least prove this to us for whatever was supposed to happen. No one knew what was going to happen.

I had a collection of about 600 National Geographic magazines my father left me from the 80's and 90's, and I just started flipping through them all. The first article that stuck with me was one about the temple located in Baalbek Lebanon. These pictures from when explorers first brought camera equipment to this site of enormous

1,200 pound Carved blocks of granite. There were other articles and photography on the original discovery of Machu Picchu and the archeological work done there. Another was about how Uranus was so odd because its orbit was rotating as if its axis was on a "skateboard".

The work National Geographic did from its conception is unparalleled.

They funded the original and some of the best excavations of the Sphinx.

This is my favorite story, it was published February 1913 (vol. XXIV, no. 2) written by George C. Martin. "The volcanic eruption of Mount Katmai, Alaska, of June, 1912 was undoubtedly one of the most violent eruptions of historic times.

This volcano

Was one of the least known of the many Alaskan volcanic peaks, and had been so long dormant that there were apparantly not even local legends of its former outbreaks." What he continues on to say sent shivers down my body the first time I read it, and he was reporting from Kodiak Island 75 miles from the volcano.

"The volcanic clouds were first noticed about 4 p.m., June 6, in the south and west. Another cloud afterward appeared in the north, the two meeting in the northeast. Ash began to fall at 5 p.m., coming in gradually increasing volume. At 7 p.m. complete had shut down. Thunder and lightning were observed soon after the cloud appeared, and continued in great severity throughout the rain of volcanic material, but diminished in intensity after midnight of the 6th.

The lightning was described by one observer as traveling like a snake and in some cases as going up from the earth in round balls. Electrical conditions were such that wireless apparatus could not be used. A number of severe earthquakes were felt during the night."

They took a photo from the ship they were on pointing straight up from the dock of the ship. It's two nimbus like shaped grey clouds that meet as if two cells touching, slightly pressed together. Where they meet is a distinct thick straight black line, not like they are mixing together but a barrier between two clouds. Every account of that event feels supernatural.

I will go into further detail why I stopped that project altogether, but the whole point has been to show that humanity in this world is historically built on a beautifully rich foundation. There is a magnificent amount of evidence for human beings great achievements and excellence worldwide that cannot be ignored. Our ancestors left undeniably sophisticated pieces of architecture for a reason. Just to name a few of these undeniable creations by our ancient ancestors that everyone can agree on: the pyramids of Giza, Machu Picchu, the Moai head statues on Easter Island, the Nazca lines (National Geographic has a very cool picture of an alien looking guy carved into the side of a mountain with his finger touching the sun on the morning of the Spring equinox), the Barabar caves in India, the extremely precise granite Vases investigated by Ben van Kyrkwyk and Christopher Dunn. I f you want proof about how special these sites are there is a beautiful piece of independent investigative research presented in the documentary B.A.M. (Builders of Ancient Mysteries).

Besides Katmai being one of the wildest events to witness first hand, there are a couple of things that have always stuck out to me after all the research.

One of those is the incredibly detailed Osiris statue made of pristine black basalt stone, one of the hardest on earth besides diamonds. Someone managed to break the head off at the shoulders. Both of these things are almost impossible to do today.

Another thing that always stood out to me Terence McKenna brought up before is that the King's Chamber in the Great Pyramid has giant cracks. This chamber is 154 feet above the bedrock made of granite. The entire structure is on a scale of precision and grandeur that far exceeds anything humans are remotely capable of today. Egyptologists assure us it is due to settling over time. Yet the pyramids have not sunk as far back as we have been able to measure. This is an Over-Site I believe they were Capable of addressing when creating such a perfect Structure.

What this looks like is there was a time in Earth's history where some being intentionally destroyed much of humanities Creations. I have mentioned a few, but I believe the evidence spans the globe. Specifically Tanis, this is an area of Egypt that looks to be just devastated by something cataclysmic. There are megalithic granite statues that have been melted by extreme heat (1,220 Celsius, 2210 F°). There is literally some biblical damage done to this place. Brien Foerster.

discusses this and has great video footage. Not too far from this location Flinders Petrie (British archeologist) found the labyrinth. What he found left was little bits and pieces of what was a well documented structure in Hawara once upon a time in history. What Petri found is what was left of the walls. This was just the wreckage of the first level floor of the labyrinth, which spread over 28,000 square meters.

Last odd piece of history that stuck out to me is inside the Red Pyramid located in Egypt.
Ben van Kerkwyk documented this in his video with Yousef Awyan when they show footage inside the Red Pyramid, one of the pyramids. The independent researcher Keith Hamilton estimated around 98 cubic meters was removed from inside the pyramid. That is 280 tons of granite that seems to have made its way out of this building and disposed of. No one knows where that debris is, or why, or how any of that was done. What I am saying is there is clear evidence that some powerful beings wanted this technology to end.

Part 13 : How Old Is

Humankind

We begin with a meditation...

Focus on the pyramid energy force controlling your universe within. I envision the inner chambers of the Great Pyramid in Giza as having a similar design to how our body is designed. Both embodying the golden ratio inside and out.

As the pyramid energy spins around your center its density increases as it rises upward. As I envision the pyramids force inside of me circling I see it all as my own chemical factory and aligned similarly to that of the Great Pyramid. This harmonizes me. In the book Giza's Industrial Complex the researchers lay out substantial evidence for how the entire plateau is designed as a chemical factory. I always found these parallels fascinating, and very much part of what I meditate on when I feel this field permeate my body.

It is the gut that lets the brain know what endogenous chemical reactions are necessary to build the body to its specifications at that moment. In every sense our stomach is responsible for the chemical reactions that create each unique cell when needed.

Our body, through this field, tells it where, when, and what to bring; just like magic.

I have always wondered how old we are as a species. Looking back now in 2025 on the education I received from the American institutions I grew up in, we were taught lies. Reflecting back, the intentions of these institutions seems to be more of a concerted effort to misinform it's Citizen's to get the populous to go along with whatever they want. In other words, what we are taught is more like propaganda. I assure you it's the way people are governed worldwide... because it works.

Terence McKenna said that the victors create all the calendars. It always struck me as odd when I was a child that we have a year 0. My mother explained that it was when Christ was born, so we just started there. This took me some time to comprehend, and all our school systems just assume we are on board with this. For some reason we established that as the time to start counting as modern civilization because before that is too old for us to care about.

This essentially sets boundaries in our heads as children what people are capable of in what time frame, which we then reference throughout the rest of our life. You hear people say "fifty is just old".

So what happened before 2,000 years ago according to historians is negligible to human existence.

Thus, everything before 0 is negative years going further when referenced and no reason to investigate because it's basically just piles of dirt. This is the lie. These institutions are lying about human history.

I will tell you what, I was really hoping that someone would come along in my forty plus years of existence and say, "hey, no more bullshit... what is really going on because this makes no sense?" They just cover lies with more lies so really its come to a point they don't care that the lies are blatant.

The sheer ridiculous nature

OF this tactic makes one want to give up.

That's what I am here for so read to the end because I know... So I am going to try and stick this landing and bring this all together.
